It took an hour and a half to overpower the guards and force an entrance. The victims were walked three blocks to a tree. The elder Vinson was soon strung up. Then some one said to Charles: "Your pa is up there, go up and see him." The two men were hanged on the same limb, their faces six inches apart. Both bodies were allowed to remain until the mob dispersed. The sheriff was aware of the plan to lynch the mob and although he had extra guards on duty at the jail, no violent measures were undertaken against the mob. The largest piece of Good tobacco ever sold for 10 cents making such a swift capture. We went to the express and got the securities right enough without any trouble. It would have been an easier matter to get Holt, but Mr. Colfax, for some reason, vetoed the proposition to catch him, and he went scot free of that particular crime. The fellow who told me was a crook, but had nothing to do with the transaction, and in consideration of the 'give away' was allowed to leave the city with a warning."—Washington Post.

A LUCKY SNEEZE.

It Came Just in Time to Make M. X. a Spanish Minister.

The writer of "Secrets in Spain" tells in the pages of The New Review how ministers were sometimes made under the regime of Queen Isabella of Spain. Perhaps the most remarkable instance is that of a man who was made minister for sneezing. The story is as follows: M. X. had gone one day to pay a casual visit to one of his friends. To his surprise he found his friend very much occupied. "Excuse me," said he, "but I am very busy today. But if you have nothing to do come along with me." "Where are you going?" "I have been summoned to the palace." They set off together. At the palace one was conducted to the presence of the queen, while the other waited in the anteroom. There was a lengthy sitting in the queen's cabinet, a new ministry being in course of formation.

It was very cold and drafty in the anteroom, and the man who was waiting began to grow very impatient, as he felt a cold in the head coming on. "Whom shall we appoint to the exchequer? Whom to the treasury? Whom to the war department?" asked the queen. Gradually after much discussion the ministry was built up by bit. There was now only the colonial minister to be appointed. "I must have a colonial minister," said the queen. "Whom shall we appoint colonial minister?" "No one could be thought of. All at once a sneeze was heard in the anteroom. 'Who is that sneezing in the anteroom?' asked the queen. "M. X." "M. X.!" The very man—the very man for the colonial minister! Tell M. X. to come in. That is how M. X. became colonial minister—by having sneezed.

Keep Their Secrets Well.

The French keep the secrets of their ammunition wonderfully. Their powder gives excellent results, but its composition is still unknown, and their dynamite shells for the navy and field artillery have not yet been imitated by any other country. The best French naval experts believe that only quick drying guns, using high explosive shells which are of any use in the next naval engagement. They contend that these shells will abolish armor, as armor tends to increase the effect of bursting shells. The first thing our new government will have to do is to provide our navy with quick firing guns and shells that shall be effective. It is not denied that in both these particulars the French at the present moment are far ahead of us.—Saturday Review.

THE UNHAPPY CABMAN.

One of the Gotham Fraternity Tells a Tale of Woe.

"A cabman's life ain't all beer and skittles," said an up town fellow the other day. "Nobody ever thinks of the poor cabbie a tip, and lots of 'em seem to take a sort of pride in never payin a cent more than the legal fare. A man don't haggle over 15 cents in a store, but he will fuss over that rate card till he's black in the face for fear he'll give me too much. After that they'll walk off and stick their chins out at you as though they had done a good action. They call it being strong minded, I s'pose, and strictly just and all that sort o' blarney—mean, I call it. More than once I've driven a well dressed man down town and had him jump out and go into one o' them big office buildings.

"Wait, 'sees, I'll be out in a minute."

"Well, say! If I'd waited till he come out I'd be there yet. All them buildings has two or three entrances, and he goes in one and slips out o' the other.

"Why a man should take a cab down town when he's hard up beats me. I s'pose he can't fool the cable car out of a nickel, but he can do me out of a dollar. Some of 'em will get out of a cab in some mysterious way when they gets to where they want to go. You drive on to the address they've told you, likely 10 or 12 blocks farther on, and find your cab empty. How they do it is one too much for me. It makes lots of noise gettin out of a cab when it's movin, but they do it. Women don't often beat a man out of his fare, but they're pretty bad about payin 'em. I'd rather take my chances any day on bluffin a man out of more'n his fare than a woman. You can't rattle a woman half as easy and she's twice as obstinate.

"About the only time we get a cinch is in winter when there's lots o' slush around. There ain't any talk then about drivin to the station house and askin the sergeant at the desk what's the fare from Twenty-third to Fifty-eighth street. Take it all round, a cabman's life is a dog's life, and yet there's just as much competition as in anything else."—New York Tribune.
